Elkay unveils new technology center

BROADVIEW, ILL. — Elkay Plumbing Products Division President Jim Scott has announced the company will transform its sink manufacturing facility here into the Elkay Technology Center, which will include a new “rapid production facility.”

The facility will feature flexible tooling and production capability to deliver a new approach to products. The technology center will produce high-end sinks featuring new shapes, sizes and finishes, going from concept to production faster than is possible with current manufacturing systems.

Elkay sink plants in Lumberton, N.C., and Ogden, Utah, will assume responsibility for more of the high-volume sink production for Elkay's Plumbing Products Division.
